Panini First to Market with RDC Solution for MAC Users
Market-leading Check Scanners Available for MAC-based Small Businesses

Dayton, OH (February 8, 2011) – Panini, a global payments processing technology provider, is announcing the availability of a MAC interface for their market-leading check scanners designed for remote deposit capture (RDC). The solution is the first to offer true MICR capture allowing MAC-based small businesses the ability to capitalize on the many advantages and efficiencies available with RDC.

According to Net Applications, MAC market share in the United States has been consistently growing and in October 2010 reached a high of 11.41% of all desktop deployed operating systems. “We are very excited about this segment,” says Michael Pratt, Chief Marketing Officer, Panini. “There are a significant number of MAC-based small businesses and consumers that, until now, haven’t been able to take advantage of RDC, so this initiative has been a priority for Panini.”

Panini’s new MAC interface is based on Vision API version 3.6 and supports their complete check scanning product line including the Vision X® and I:Deal® products. The company’s network of financial services software partners can now offer a RDC solution to this growing segment of small businesses.

“Our customers and partners have been asking for a MAC-supported RDC solution,” adds Pratt. “As the market leader, we took on the responsibility to respond to industry demand.”

Panini is currently involved in many strategic initiatives surrounding these new MAC capabilities and will be making additional announcements, including new customers, partnerships and channels.
